In another column of the News appears the announcement of the candidacy of Prof. Joseph Peterson for nomination to the office of superintendent of schools of Navajo county. Prof. Peterson was elected to the office in 1914; since assuming his duties he has conducted the schools of the county in a very satisfactory manner, and his friends and the patrons of the schools generally believe that he should be renominated and reelected. Prof. Peterson's qualifications are excellent. For eleven years he taught in the Snowflake academy, ten of these years being principal of the academy. Prior to that he served in the lower house of the twenty-fifth territorial legislature. In all positions of public life he has shown himself to be a competent and trustworthy official.

John Connor, the well known cattle man, has retired from the stock business and will make his home in Holbrook. He is now arranging to improve the corner north of Hotel Holbrook by the erection of an office building and residence for Dr. Switzer. Other buildings may be erected by him in the near future. Mr. Connor's partner and brother-in-law, Charles Allenbaugh, has purchased an 80 acre farm in the Big Sandy valley, 40 miles south of Kingman, and he will make that his home. He will engage in farming and stock raising.
